Actor Kyle Klaus Goes for Laughs on "The Last O.G." and "Happy"

News by HollywoodBigFan posted 17 days ago

New York has a long history with delivering some very funny television shows starring some very big personalities. Think "Seinfeld," "30 Rock," "Friends," and tons of others that have brought big laughs as they offered up crazy stories about The Big Apple. And, they've also given opportunity for hundreds of actors to show off their comedy chops.

One such actor is Kyle Klaus, who steps into the small screen comedy arena with appearances on two very different shows. He recently helped launch season two of Syfy's oddball dark comedy "Happy"; and coming up, he joins the hilarious Tracy Morgan for an episode of TBS's hit "The Last O.G."

New York based actor KYLE KLAUS is getting laughs appearing on not one, but two TV shows this spring season.

First, he sprang up as a Manhattanite named Brad on the Season 2 opener of Syfy's dark comedy, 'Happy.' The series stars Christopher Meloni ('Law & Order: SVU') as a corrupt, intoxicated, ex-cop turned hit man whose suddenly finds himself dealing with a tiny, relentlessly positive, imaginary blue winged horse named Happy, voiced by Patton Oswalt.

More recently, Kyle donned a uniform as a local Police Officer on the TBS comedy series, 'The Last O.G.' The show stars Tracy Morgan and Tiffany Haddish as ex's raising their children after being reunited when Tracy is released from a 15-year prison sentence. Now in Season 2, their son suddenly finds himself dealing with 'Da Police'.

"Kyle Klaus has it. In fact he has 'IT' in spades. Kyle has a rare naturalistic style of acting I rarely see, which is only complimented by his willingness to adhere to every bit of direction I give and his willingness to surrender and sacrifice himself for the greater good of the film. Working with Klaus was a gift and I find myself consciously writing roles for him in everything I do."

– Cody Blue Snider
writer/director 'All That Remains'

"Kyle is an artist. A true collaborator. He sees more than what's on the page and challenges the material to make it better. His dedication to the role and what he gives you on the day, with little to no rehearsal, is astonishing and a real treat to watch from behind the camera."

– Chad Schultz
writer/director 'Slashed'

"I found that one of the joys of being a screenwriter/ producer is not only working with people who have had roles in major movies but to also work with up and coming actors, who you know are having or will have shortly, a major impact as thespians on stage and/or screen. Kyle Klaus is one of those. You can see the dedication to his craft in just a couple of lines. I hope I get to work with him again before he rockets-up permanently. I'd better hurry and get a project to him."

writer/producer 'Reunion 108'

His Story

Kyle Klaus always knew he wanted to be an actor from a very young age. Only, this small-town boy, raised in the suburbs of Pennsylvania, never really thought it was a possibility.

Kyle was always getting lost in a character, dreaming of a bigger world out there, and making those around him believe in something greater as well.

Kyle was an accomplished athlete in many sports growing up. It wasn't until attending Kutztown University that he quickly realized he couldn't just pick one thing to be for the rest of his life - he wanted to be many. A chance encounter seeing an audition notice while walking through the campus theatre department, made it seem possible. Kyle snagged his first ever audition and booked the supporting role Russ, a ladies' man on campus, in the independent feature, Misdirected.

Since then, Kyle has made his way to New York and added numerous credits to his resume. Currently, Kyle is hitting the small screen in a recurring role on NBC's popular action drama, The Blacklist. He also appeared this season alongside Tracy Morgan in the TBS laughier, The Last O.G., and in Syfy's dark comedy, Happy. Previously, Kyle emerged on two acclaimed Showtime dramas, Homeland and Billions; and audiences will remember him recurring as police officer 'Jason Mosser' on the long-running ABC drama, One Life to Live.

On the festival circuit, Kyle has received considerable attention for his leading role in the award-winning film, All That Remains, a WW2 drama about a veteran soldier suffering from dementia. In addition to acting, Kyle has found success in other creative aspects as well, such as writing, producing, and entrepreneurial endeavors.
